PINCHOT TO PRESENT A PEACE PLAN

COMMEND POLICE FOR ACTIVITIES AGAINST LIQUOR

CHURCH COUNCIL EXPRESS REGRET PASTOR'S RESIGNATION

At the morning session of the First Congregational church yesterday, the resignation of Rev. John Grant was acted upon by the church council. A series of resolutions was presented by Dean G. Walter Fiske, of Oberlin, as follows:

With very genuine regret this ecclesiastical Council concurs in the action of the Elyria Church in releasing from their pastorate our brother beloved, the Reverend John Hiram Grant. We regard his leaving our fellowship as a very serious loss to his church, his city and the state, but we recognize the various factors that lead him to welcome his new opportunity to serve the First Church of Christ in Fairfield, Connecticut.

This action concludes a pastorate of unusual fruitfulness and strength, and we wish to bear witness to the effectiveness of Mr. Grant's leadership in this church. His steadily growing preaching power, his tactful and successful challenge of the co-operation of all groups in his parish in the broad program of service in which he has been among the young people and his remarkable pastoral care and gracious pastoral oversight, making him an intimate friend in every home, his broad sympathy with all human interests and civic movements in this growing city that counts him today one of its first citizens, and his personal wisdom that has won countless friends among all classes but notably through the young people of his church, are to be long remembered as conspicuous elements in his long and successful service in this field.

We wish also to express our appreciation of the services rendered by Mr. Grant in behalf of the Ohio Congregational fellowship, to which he immediately on his coming expressed himself, and which he has increasingly enriched by his brotherliness and willing helpfulness. In the work of the State Conference he has been one of the most valuable and efficient leaders, serving most acceptably as Moderator and for several terms as chairman of the executive committee. He has been foremost to lead and assist in realizing the denominational program through the Conference and has honorably represented us as a member of the National Council and on its commissions. His relation to neighboring churches and ministers and the near-by college in Oberlin has always been one of sympathetic and helpful fellowship. Ever a true friend to his brethren, he has always responded willingly wherever there was opportunity to serve. In returning to New England, he takes with him the affection of his fellow ministers in a very unusual degree.

We extend to the First Church of Elyria our personal sympathy in the loss of so choice a pastor and our prayers that they may soon be led to find a worthy successor. We know how keenly they will also miss the helpful ministries of his grace and his talented wife. To the First Church of Christ in Fairfield we offer our hearty congratulations and confident hopes that they will welcome these dear friends of ours with a loyal co-operation that will surely make this third pastorate the most happy and rewarding of all their life service.

For the Council by:
G. WALTER FISKE,
EDWARD C. YOUNG,

POSTAL TO HAVE A NEW CABLE

The local Postal Telegraph station announces that the American end of the largest and fastest deep-sea cable ever manufactured was landed Saturday at the Postal Telegraph commercial cables system at Far Rockaway, N. Y. This is the first step between the United States and Europe. A cable ship is now on the way to Canada to lay another section of 1,750 miles from Canada to the Azores Islands. When completed the Postal will have its second direct circuit to France and the continent.

BOY BREAKS BACK

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 27.—The four-year-old son of Albert Harris is in a local hospital with a broken back sustained when he was jarred off his father's automobile and fell beneath the running wheels. The boy was on the running board.

DISORDERS AS FREE STATERS HOLD ELECTION

DUBLIN, Aug. 27.—Firing broke out here today in connection with the first general election in the Irish free state. Snipers became active and free state troops responded by turning machine guns loose against the buildings where the sharpshooters were hidden. Although it was the noisiest battle in months, no casualties were reported.

President William T. Cosgrove of the dail, disclosed that the republicans had ordered him kidnapped, evidently in reprisal for the arrest of Eamonn De Valera. President Cosgrove issued the following election manifesto to the nation:

"We rendered our account. We secured peace and order. If you want them maintained, you had better act today than regret it tomorrow."

The early polling proved heavier than expected. Many old women stood in line outside the booths. The results probably will be announced Wednesday night.

Free state leaders said they expected to win at least 65 of the 153 dail eireann seats.

Police and civic guards were on duty throughout the country. The register of voters numbered 1,800,000.

Detectives were stationed at the 4,000 polling places to prevent fraud.

Leaders of the republicans admitted they could not gain control of the dail, but said they would keep up the fight. It was predicted that the farmers would obtain 44 seats, labor 25 and that the republicans and independents would get about 19 seats between them.

Owing to the system of proportional representation it was conceded that Eamonn De Valera, chief leader of the republicans, who is now in prison would be elected to the dail in county Clare, but it is doubtful if he will be allowed to take his seat.

There are many women candidates, including Mary MacConvey, sister of the late lord mayor of Cork, who died on hunger strike in an English prison, and the Countess Markiewicz.

KU KLUX KLAN OFFER REWARD FOR SLAYERS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—As an aftermath to the rioting between civilians and the Ku Klux Klan when the latter attempted to parade through the city last Saturday night and early Sunday morning, Patrick McDermott, 55, an undertaker, is being held here in jail today in connection with the death of Thomas R. Abbott, of Atlasburg, Pa., a klanman.

Twenty-five hundred dollars has been offered by the klan for the arrest and conviction of Abbott's slayer or slayers, another $2500 of Saturday night and early Sunday morning, the inciters of the fatal riot and more than one hundred klanmen are guarding the paraphernalia on the hill just outside of Carnegie, where the 3000 novitates were initiated Saturday evening.

Both rewards are understood to have been offered by the Pennsylvania Klan, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Mr. W. H. Evans, Imperial wizard of the order, who attended the meeting, issued a statement, in which he declared, "Klanmen Abbott was killed because he exercised his constitutionally guaranteed right to peaceable assembly, free speech and free movement over the highways of our country." He also said that "the action of the mob at Carnegie smacks ofarchy."

Sixteen men who were arrested early yesterday in connection with the rioting were released. No charges were placed against them. Three men are being held in the county jail who are said to have had revolvers and a handful of bricks during the fight. The 10 reported wounded are recovering, according to authorities today. It is estimated that fully 20,000 klanmen attended the initiations Saturday night.

WOMAN WANTS DIVORCE

Josephine Johnson, of Lorain, is asking for a divorce from Carl Johnson. They were married in 1914 and she states she has been guilty of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty. For some time she charges he has been a common scoundrel, and that he has remained out nights. On several occasions she alleges he has struck her, and she now asks a divorce, alimony and the custody of their child.

DEATH REMOVES ADELAIDE ROOD

The death of Mrs. Adelaide Rood 50, took place early Sunday at her home, 616 West avenue, after an illness of several months. Mrs. Rood has been a resident of this city for many years, and had a circle of close friends who regret to hear of her death. During her illness she was tenderly cared for by her daughters, Miss Mary Rood, Agnes Rood and Mrs. Gertrude Pearlall, all of Elyria. Another daughter, Miss Mable, lives in Ravenna, and a son, Frank Andrews, lives in Lorain.

Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. L. Suran.

DE VALERA LANGUISHES IN JAIL AFTER ARREST

Arrow indicates Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, speaking at Ennis, County Clare, just before his arrest.

With the elections approaching, Eamon De Valera, Republican leader and candidate for a Dail seat, languishes in a Dublin jail.

De Valera was arrested by Free State soldiers at Ennis, County Clare, while making a stump speech. A huge crowd was listening to the speaker, but no disorder attended the arrest. His listeners fled at the coming of the troops.

MRS. COMISKEY BANDIT VICTIM HAS COLLAPSE

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Grace Comiskey, daughter-in-law of Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox baseball team, today was in a state bordering on nervous collapse, following her experience late Sunday when she and Edward (Big Ed) Walsh, former big league pitcher, were held up in the Comiskey home in South Michigan avenue and robbed of jewelry valued at $10,000.

So serious was her condition that two detectives guarded the home all night to quiet her fears. Mrs. Comiskey and Walsh were held up by two negro bandits when they went to the back yard to lock up the Comiskey pup for the night after returning from the Post-Graduate Hospital, where they had visited Louis Comiskey, her husband.

Mrs. Comiskey lost a $5,000 diamond studded watch, a $2,500 diamond ring and a $50 necklace. She reported to the police. Walsh was robbed of a $2,500 diamond stud and $150 in cash.

They had returned from a visit to the sick room of Mrs. Comiskey's husband, when the barking of the dog in the back yard attracted their attention. Both went to lock the dog up and were returning to the house when the footpads, wearing masks over the lower part of their faces, halted them and covered Walsh with a revolver.

Miss Alice Reidy, a sister of Mrs. Comiskey, was in the house, but the music of a phonograph drowned the noise of the bandits' conversation. The negroes ordered Mrs. Comiskey and Walsh into the kitchen, took the jewelry and cash, then locked them in the cellar. The music covered their exit.

Walsh found a baseball bat in the cellar and by beating on the floor summoned Miss Reidy, who released them.

THOUSANDS TO SEE AIRPLANES IN BIG EVENT

DAYTON, Aug. 27.—Air service officials are making arrangements for a crowd of 50,000 people at the aerial carnival to be staged Labor Day at McCook field for the benefit of the United States army relief fund, which is maintained solely through the efforts of the enlisted men in the service.

The most spectacular event on the program of twenty numbers will be an airplane attack on an observation balloon, high in the air and the destruction of a fort, erected in the middle of the field immediately after the balloon is shot down.

During the firing on the balloon from airplanes, the observer will make a thrilling leap for life in a parachute. All elements of war will enter into the attack, officials said.

When the balloon bursts into flames, anti-aircraft guns at the fort will cut loose with everything they've got. The men behind the program say they are going to give the public a real view of what happened many times on the western front during the world war.

In addition to this spectacular event there will be a fight by the huge Barling bomber. This will be its first public appearance. Another event will be a public demonstration of the Debothez helicopter.

Pilots from Selfridge, Scott, Wright and McCook fields will participate. Air service officials said this will be the greatest aerial carnival ever undertaken in America. McCook field officials this week are advertising the coming event throughout the Great Miami valley by means of airplanes and balloons. All towns and villages will be "bombed" from a great height with posters.

JUDGE REFUSES BANK WRECKERS BOND SATURDAY

DAYTON, Aug. 27.—Rejection of the bond of $30,000 submitted to John E. Sater, federal judge at Columbus Saturday in behalf of Fred W. Hecht, defaulting cashier of the American National Bank, was a distinct surprise and shock to Dayton friends of the man.

It was almost the sole topic of discussion over Sunday. No one here could understand why Judge Sater rejected the bond which had been fixed by the federal authorities. Persons on the joint bond are prominent and worth many times the amount of liability according to persons in a position to know.

It was expected that an explanation would be forthcoming during the day.

Hecht and his friends were greatly disappointed. Hecht's partner in the Dayton Fruit Exchange, some years ago, who was arrested Friday had made bond and is free. He is accused of issuing a fraudulent check for $192. His bond was $300. It was during the existence of this partnership that Hecht says he took the first wrong step. Defalcations followed until the total shortage which wrecked the bank amounted to $315,000.

He said the argument waxed warm after his arrival there and that he drew his revolver and backed out of the house.

Mrs. Liberman followed him and her calls for help attracted neighbors, who joined the chase.

The charges were dismissed today for want of prosecution. Police informed the court that both the girl and her aunt, Mrs. Julia Liberman of Chicago, wished to drop the case. They offered no explanation. The Wager girl, it was said, has gone to her Milwaukee home.

A charge of carrying concealed weapons was continued. Police said they found a loaded magazine pistol on Adler when he was arrested.

Adler told the patrolman that he received a telephone summons to the Liberman home Saturday and that he took a revolver because he feared trouble.

CHICAGO YOUTH ESCAPES FROM MOB VIOLENCE

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Cyrus M. Adler, 24, son of Max Adler, millionaire vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, faced arrest in Englewood Court today on charges preferred by relatives of Miss Sylvia Wager, 18-year-old Milwaukee girl.

Adler narrowly escaped mob violence Saturday night when he fled from the home of Miss Wager's aunt, Mrs. Julia Liberman, pursued by relatives of the girl and neighbors. He was placed under arrest and when released on bond a police guard was stationed at the Adler home to prevent any further attempts against him.

His bond was fixed at $1,000 on each of three charges — carrying concealed weapons, contributing to the delinquency of a minor and a statutory charge.

Patrolman Gibbons, who arrested Adler in a store where he had fled from the Liberman home, said the irate aunt of the Milwaukee girl had Adler in a corner and was "trying to gouge his eyes out."

According to the patrolman, Adler told him that he and a friend, Sanders Cohn, took the Wager girl and Miss Emma Eckhaus for a ride Thursday night. At a lonely spot the car was halted and Cohn and Miss Eckhaus got out for a walk.

The girl's aunt said Sylvia told her that Adler overpowered her while they were alone in the car.

Adler told the patrolman that he received a telephone summons to the Liberman home Saturday and that he took a revolver because he feared trouble.

HARRISBURG IS NOW CENTER OF COAL ARGUMENT

LEWIS INSISTS ON OPERATORS SURRENDERING

By George T. Hook.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Aug. 27.—"Awaiting developments," John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, remained here today while other representatives of the anthracite miners who threaten to strike next Saturday were in Harrisburg attending the conference was called in the hope of averting the walkout.

Lewis whose reason for not attending the Harrisburg meeting, is illness, failed to show any great enthusiasm over the conference. He gave the impression this morning that his interest in the Pinchot conference was negative.

"The operators will have to surrender themselves or there can be no settlement," he said.

Lewis indicated that the only way a strike would be averted would be for the operators to accept the miners' proposition made at the miner-operator conference in New York August 15. At that conference Lewis demanded, among other things, a wage increase for the miners, the eight hour day and the check off (collection by the operators of union dues).

"One thing," said Lewis this morning, "the issue will not be settled by arbitration. The miners know only too well the meaning of arbitration."

"Any suggestion at the Harrisburg conference to arbitrate will not be entertained."

Lewis reiterated that the miners had entered the Harrisburg conference as a "matter of courtesy" to Governor Pinchot and that acceptance of the latter's did not mean the miners had conceded, or would concede anything.

Lewis is directly represented in Harrisburg today by the international vice-president of the union, Phillip Murray. It is understood instructions to Murray are not to permit the conference to become a battle of statistics and to hasten the conference as much as possible.

Lewis meantime plans to remain here indefinitely and nurse the cold. He will be ready to act promptly, however, in the event joint negotiations are resumed. Should that contingency arise, Lewis probably would again personally take charge of the situation rather than leave it in the hands of a subordinate.

Lewis would not comment today on a report from Washington to the effect that persons close to the administration understood Gov. Pinchot was endeavoring to bring about a compromise which would remain an increase of possibly ten per cent in the miners' pay. Such a concession it was asserted by those in close touch with the situation, would go a long way toward preventing a strike.

DENTIST FOUND, SKULL CRUSHED, HOLD SUSPECT

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—Dr. Horace Hamilton, a dentist, was found murdered at the bottom of an outside stairway in the rear of the Cleveland Public hall today. Police are holding a negro suspect with whom Hamilton reported to have quarreled yesterday morning. Hamilton's skull had been crushed with a heavy blow behind the right ear. His hands both had wounds made by a knife. A knife with a large blade open was tightly gripped in the fingers of the right hand. His face was covered with his straw hat which had apparently been placed there after his death.

Hamilton, according to Dr. Edgar W. Smiley, who identified the body at the county morgue, came here from Norfolk, Va., July 3. His address in that city was given as 223 West 28th street. Smiley, who also came from Norfolk, said Hamilton was about 25 years of age and married but had separated from his wife.

Realizing that upon the success or failure of his effort to mediate hangs his opportunity to confront the people next summer as a progressive next summer as a presidential nomination, Governor Pinchot had prepared a plan and a statement of policy for presentation to the deadlocked leaders, calculated to impress upon them the futility and folly of a strike at this time.

In line with the determination that public opinion shall enter into the final negotiations, the governor has announced that the initial meeting shall be open to the press. The statement to be presented at this meeting, it was forecast, will be designed to show the miners and operators that a walkout on the first of next month would materially injure the anthracite.

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 27.—The river near Glendale is being dragged today for the body of John Burke, 33, of Benwood, W. Va. Drowned during last night. He leaped from a pleasure craft in an effort to recover a shirt that had broken loose, missed the leap in the darkness and plunged into the river to death.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 27.—

The public will not tolerate a strike in the anthracite fields. September 1. Governor Pinchot today warned the warring operators and miners assembled in conference here at the call of the Pennsylvania executive.

"The public interest demands that this controversy shall be settled, and that a suspension of mining shall be avoided," Pinchot charged, as the meeting opened. "The thing is possible — and it must be done."

A grim determination was evident on the part of the governor as he launched his opening plea for a settlement. In plain, outspoken words, he called to the attention of the eight men representing the two factions the dangers of a strike at this time. He pointed to a huge loss of wages to the miners — particularly he stressed the loss of income and even actual starvation that a shut-down of the coal industry would work upon the public.

"A shortage of anthracite means loss of health among millions of American families, loss of comfort and the very essentials of life," he said. "A strike or suspension of work is now a public calamity and as such every reasonable public means must be used to prevent it."

Hope was expressed by Pinchot that a settlement would not be impossible.

"The eleventh hour is upon us — and the crisis has now been reached," he told the delegation. "We must do this in this eleventh hour what should have been done before. It can be done and must be done. There is still time. Let us use this time in an effective series of common counsel so that the coming day may mean peace with regard to the rights of all and with due credit and honor to all concerned."

Returning to the rights of the people, Pinchot continued: "The Roosevelt platform of 1912 asserted that 'the public good comes first.' Do not forget that the public cannot look with indifference upon unnecessary industrial conflict over private rights while it suffers in health, comfort and the very essentials of life."

"As the representative of the people of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I am here to tell you that these rights are to be recognized and protected also."

"The public does not and cannot see with your eyes and appreciate with your experience the background and the details of the present controversy, but it knows the essential facts. I express the truth none will deny when I say that the anthracite-using people of the United States are losing patience, and I ask you to consider the fact with care."

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 27.—The anthracite storm center today shifted to Harrisburg, capital of the state which furnishes the nation with its hard coal.

Facing the political crisis of his career, Governor Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, was prepared to make one final effort to bring the anthracite operators and miners together and avert a mine shutdown on Sept. 1.

At 12 o'clock noon the two factions are scheduled to meet with the governor in the state capital and for the third time attempt to reach an agreement which will assure continuance of anthracite production.

Realizing that upon the success or failure of his effort to mediate hangs his opportunity to confront the people next summer as a progressive next summer as a presidential nomination, Governor Pinchot had prepared a plan and a statement of policy for presentation to the deadlocked leaders, calculated to impress upon them the futility and folly of a strike at this time.

THE TRAGEDY OF WOODROW WILSON

In the ceremonies attending the funeral of the late President, there emerged one figure upon whom the public eye centered even more than upon the man whom the death of Warren Harding elevated to the presidency. For the second time since retiring from the presidency, Woodrow Wilson appeared in public, a casualty of the war in which he will always appear as the greatest personality. At present he is the broken and defeated victim of that war, and yet despite it all there is a suppressed feeling that he is the greatest of living Americans. His picture thrown upon the screen calls out an enthusiasm which was called forth by Theodore Roosevelt in the days of his greatest popularity. His appearance in public calls forth an attention directed to no other. There is a half-conscious belief that this man, broken physically and defeated in the attainment of his great ideal, will fill a larger place in history than many are willing to accord to him today.

Now that the bitter animosities of political antagonism are subsiding, there is a general tendency to think more kindly of Woodrow Wilson. "The solemn folly of Versailles," as John Maynard Keynes called the treaty drawn up in Paris, has kept Europe an armed camp ever since the close of a war which was fought, as we thought, to end war. It was in direct violation of the memorable "fourteen points" proclaimed by Mr. Wilson which marked the highest peak of idealism and human brotherhood to which the visions and the hopes of mankind were ever directed. And yet Mr. Wilson by some mental fiction believed that all his fourteen points were embodied in this diverse and trouble-breeding document.

The detached historian of the future unmoved by the passions of the hour, may be able to reconcile this apparent contradiction as we today cannot. The intellectual pride of Mr. Wilson, which was at once his strength and his weakness, furnishes the secret of his final undoing at the hands of his contemporaries. But whether a generation far enough removed from the bitter personal hatreds and jealousies will view Mr. Wilson in the same light may well be doubted when we recall the career of Abraham Lincoln. Before Lincoln was struck down by the assassin, he too was bitterly assailed, and by men like Sumner and Greeley, and by Wade of this state. But the present generation knows or hears little except what is good and wise about Lincoln. In the light of current history, we may well raise the question how Lincoln would have fared had he lived to carry on the work of reconstruction, or how Woodrow Wilson would have fared had an assassin's bullet struck him down on his way to Paris.

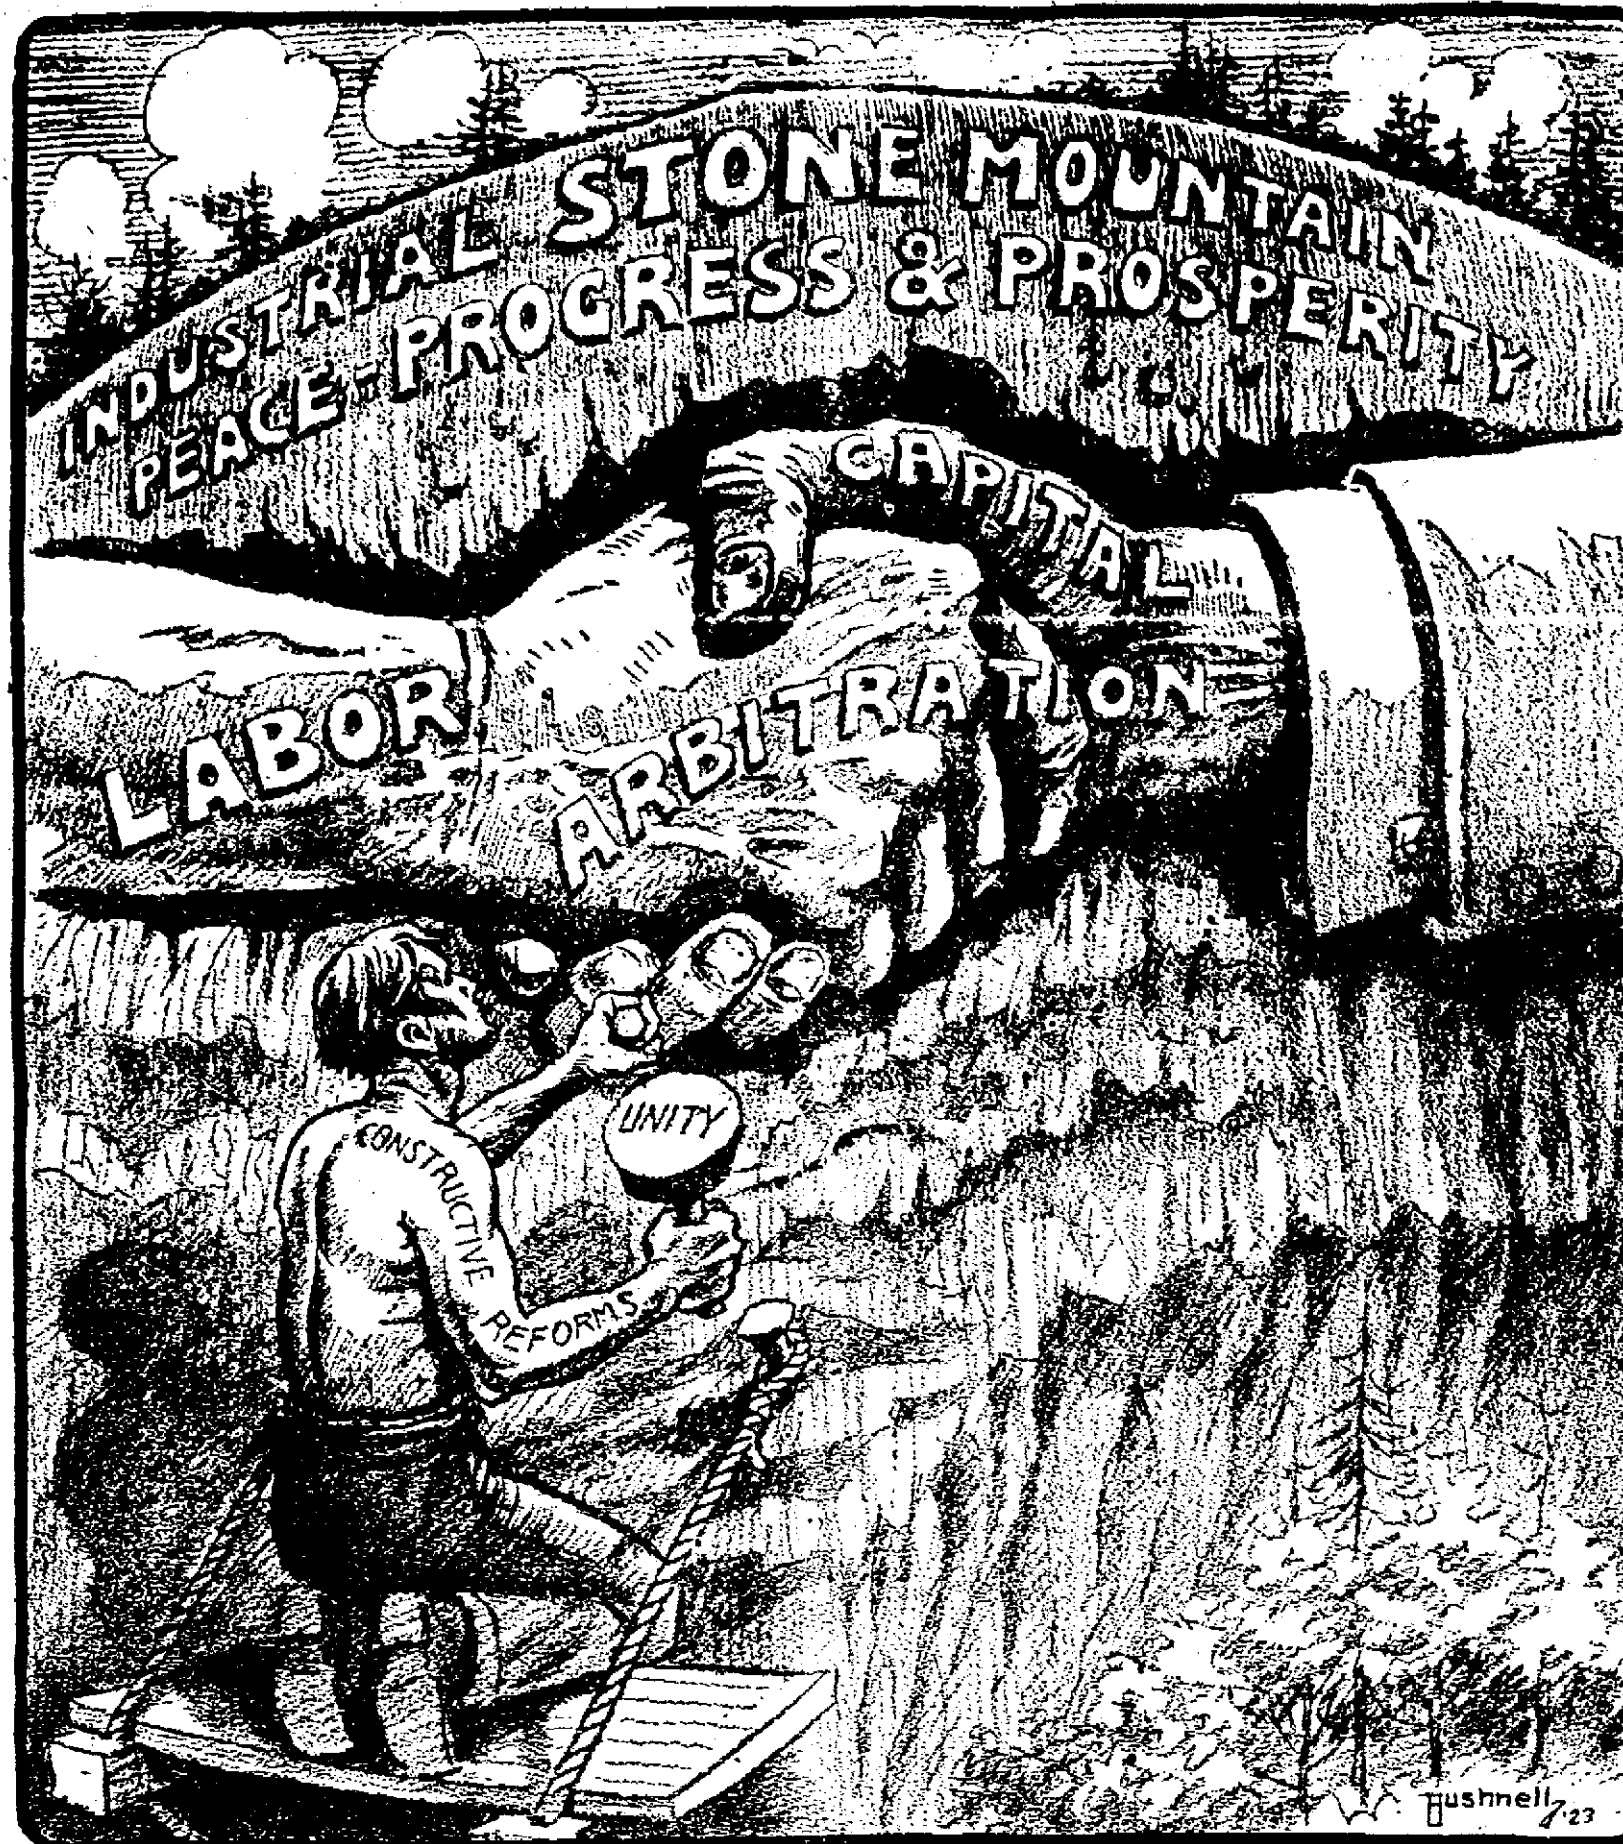

The fact is, to Mr. Wilson was given a superhuman task. In that terrible loneliness which comes to a man upon whom the hopes as well as the burdens of the world rest, it would be strange if a man's vision were not diverted, and his mind turned, as a boat is turned in the fury of the blast and in the thick darkness of the night, and he be not conscious of it. To us it seems the wily diplomacy of the present order was too much for him. But we may well ask whether any man in the present moral state of the nations could have realized the high ideals of Mr. Wilson,—ideals which thrilled the holiest expectations of a world in anguish.

We wonder—and we write as one of those who were among the critics of Mr. Wilson—if Mr. Wilson will not be remembered by those who come after, not for his failure in Paris, but for those high sentiments and great ideals which made such a mighty appeal to the common people of his day; if the school boy of the future will not declaim some of his matchless English, struck out during the agony of war, as the schoolboy of today declaims the Gettysburg speech and the noble language of the second inaugural.

Surely, the broken figure who rode behind the dead form of the unknown soldier and of our late President should give us pause. His limitations are a part of the stuff of our mortal being. None can flout those holy sentiments of his brilliant mind and his generous heart which awakened the hopes of multitudes in every corner of the earth. We believe the people of this great land are thinking well of Woodrow Wilson. It is not pity for the man whose active life is ended that moves us as we see him riding through the streets of the capital of the nation. It is the memory of great ideas and ideals of a highly-cultured and vigorous personality which makes him loom larger and larger.

The American people are generous and kind. Left to themselves, and freed from partisan bitterness, they turn toward the best in a man. And as the years pass on, men will think of Mr. Wilson, not for his mistakes, or his limitations, but for the visions of universal peace and international good-will which he saw just ahead, but which were dissolved by the practicality of a world not yet ready to see the vision. "This not what man that exalts him, but what he would do." It is that Woodrow Wilson which mingles glory and tragedy.

KOMICAL TELEGRAMS

By JIM ARMITAGE, Himself

They keep putting on the sob stuff about the coal strike—it's pitiful—almost makes a lump rise in your throat.

They tell the public to "Keep Cool!" guess we will if they don't get the thing straightened out.

If they ever go through with the strike—you'll have to get your "black diamonds" from Oscar Harrod.

Lot of the strike talk sounds like propaganda from one of the Florida winter resorts.

They keep most of the headlines in the newspaper offices—they're the same every year—they simply change the date.

Steinmetz says it will only be a short time till electricity will be cheap enough to use for heat and fuel. If the coal operators ever read that—good night Steinmetz.

If the strike leaders keep on talking—they might store up the gas—it might work.

Last year the miners wanted a five-hour day—next year they'll want Cadillac to drive to work in.

ABE MARTIN

At a debate at Apple Grove school last night it was resolved that the automobile does not hurt the railroads any more than the railroads hurt the automobiles. "I never expect to see a purtier sight than this sun when it first appeared this morning," said Mrs. Lib Pash, who allus waits up fer her daughters.

Coolidge says "What the country needs is co-operation" he's not entirely right—what the country needs is COAL.

Coal is so dear out in Iowa that they burned corn for fuel last year. Since prohibition—there's few other uses for it.

About the time the miners get their difficulties settled there'll be a "car shortage." Anyway you figure it the public is the party of the second part.

Wish it would get so tough that all the ukeleles in the country had to be used as fuel.

All they do in the summer is talk about the coal situation and all there is left to do in the winter is pay for the coal situation.

Petty soft for the hard coal dealers and pretty hard for the soft coal dealers—if the strike is declared off.

Makes a fellow feel like buying a ticket to the Fiji Islands—all you need to keep warm—is a couple of suits of B. V. D.'s and a sunny disposition.

The men who own the mines are the ones who make us pay—that's why they call 'em "operators."

Henry Ford bought a coal mine a year or so ago—but I suppose it flivvered out.

If they charge much more than they did last year—Ralph Murbach or Jack Parsch will never be elected mayor.

The birds who are burning gas in their furnaces are the smart brothers—they can sit back and laugh—till they get their gas bill.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

FREDERICK G. GUEST

Frederick G. Guest, minister in charge of the British air department, when David Lloyd George was premier and who is the only minister of the British crown to own an estate in the United States, has come to this country for a visit. His wife is with him. She is the former Amy Phillips, the daughter of Henry Phipps of New York. A younger brother of Lord Wimborne, Major Freddie Guest has had a somewhat eventful career. He has been everywhere. Very rich, through his multi-millionaire father, despite his having been a younger son, he went out to South Africa some years before the Boer war and was suspiciously near to Johannesburg at the time of the Jameson raid. Afterward he joined Kitchener, and as an officer of the camel corps took part in the reconquest of the Sudan and in the battle and capture of Khartoum.

He was a captain of the ret lie guards in the Boer war of a score of years ago, and in the subsequent times of peace did some soldiering in India. He spent much of his time in exploring the interior of Africa and of Asia, and also prospecting in Alaska. From 1912 to 1914 he was a member of King George's household as its treasurer, but went to France on the outbreak of the great war on the staff of the then British generalissimo, Lord French, winning the distinguished service order, the legion of honor and a military commandship of the order of the British empire.

After a brief spell at home during the war, engaged in organizing the national service department, he felt the need of seeing some more fighting, and accordingly joined Gen. Jan Smuts in the arduous East Africa campaign which ended in the conquest of all Germany's vast territory in that portion of the dark continent.

Freddie Guest's American wife shares his popularity and is one of the most successful hostesses in London, where she owns the beautiful house which the late Alfred Beit, the South African diamond multi-millionaire, built for himself, regardless of expense, in Park Lane. When the war broke out she gave up this house to the British government for use as a military hospital for wounded officers and men, and in 1917, on the United States coming into the war, she, with the consent of the prime minister, turned it over to the American military authorities for a similar purpose. She organized and equipped the important Wounded Allies hospital at "Nolles-Baines" in France in 1913 for the use of French and English wounded.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS.
 Dr. John H. Finley, who is mentioned as a possible successor to Col. George Harvey, as United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, has had an interesting career since he was graduated at Knox College, in 1887, and since he got his doctor's degree at Johns Hopkins University. After completing his studies he was called to New York City, and for three years served as secretary of the State Charities Aid Association. Then he went to Knox College for a seven-years' term as president. Princeton then called him to a chair of politics, and he accepted and taught for three years, incidentally becoming an intimate friend of Grover Cleveland, whose formal, definitive biography he wrote. From 1902 Dr. Finley was the administrative head of the College of the City of New York. Then he was called to Albany to take charge of the State Department of Education. He is a poet, a devotee of walking as "a fine art," and a clever after-dinner speaker.

Four hundred and six applications for patents were made by women inventors in Great Britain last year.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

PRESENT CENSORSHIP IDEAS WOULD HAVE BURIED SHAKESPEARE, DANTE AND OTHERS.

"There is scarcely a line in the literature of the ages that could have been produced in the face of the kind of censorship we have experienced in America," declares Channing Pollock, noted playwright.

The rules made by State Boards would have buried Shakespeare, buried Balzac, destroyed Dante and rendered impossible the publication of the Holy Bible. I write as a lover of plays and as a pastor of souls, and not as a reformer. I am opposed to having plays deal with the sex impulse and with the advanced problems of society. There must, however, be some limit. Often plays are merely for propaganda and venture beyond the conventions and moral laws of the public they are not suitable for the amusement of a mixed audience and unscrupulous business should never be allowed to show them for a profit.

"GIVE RURAL CHILDREN SQUARE DEAL IN EDUCATION."
 "Work to give the children living in the country an equal opportunity with city children," the plea sounded to educators by Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, formerly Assistant Commissioner of Education in New York and late State Superintendent of School in Pennsylvania.

"Rural children," points out Dr. Finegan, "should have every opportunity enjoyed by the boys and girls who live in the cities. Instead of one teacher schools with a few scholars and no facilities they should be given the advantages of consolidated schools, fully equipped. All the courses taught in the city school should be offered them. Modern school buildings should be built. These new schools should have the best teaching service that it is possible to obtain. There should be playgrounds, recreational facilities. Not a thing should be omitted that it is possible for modern educational thought to provide these country children, for the great educational crime of today is the fact that there is appalling inequality of opportunity, and the sufferer is the child who lives in the agricultural districts.

"There is not a State in the Union that has given free and equal opportunities to the children living in the country. Why is this? Every state is compromising. They have not waked up to their responsibilities. There is not a State that has said, 'We're going to give educational advantages to all alike.' They simply do not know what good schools mean to these children, and the people living in rural sections have not yet learned the value of education. But where you find a community that understands, that appreciates what it will mean for their children to be properly trained and receive the same advantages that city children have, it is another story. Here you will find a wide awake community boasting of school facilities of which any city could be proud.

"Good roads communities will fight for. I want to see good roads in every part of the United States. But I want to see good schools likewise."

TAKES FIRE TO ENGINE HOUSE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 27.—"We have a fire and in five minutes we'll deliver it at Gett and Putt Depot streets for you to put out," said a voice over a telephone wire to Robert Stottfregan, fire tower operator yesterday. The operator notified the engine house nearest the designated corner.

Five minutes later the firemen saw the fire approaching, in the form of a blazing boxcar containing hay. It was drawn by a Baltimore & Ohio switch engine.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—One of the most celebrated investigations ever undertaken by the government under the anti-trust laws was brought to a conclusion today when it was announced at the department of justice that Attorney General Daugherty would not appeal to the United States Supreme Court in the case of the Reading Company of Pennsylvania, dissolution of which has been sought since 1913.

N. Y. COUPLE HURT IN CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKnight, 2708 Milton avenue, Solboy, N. Y., were injured Saturday night, near Rockville, when their auto was run into by a machine driven by Edwin Hoch, of West Dover.

They were brought to Memorial hospital. Mrs. McKnight had lacerations over her left eye, and a wound on her left hand, and Mr. McKnight had lacerations on his forehead and side of his head. They were not admitted as patients and departed after their wounds had been dressed.

cite market because of an enforced public usage of bituminous coal with the subsequent realization on the part of the domestic consumers that the soft fuel at a cost of from four to five dollars less than hard coal is a worthy substitute. The governor is also expected to stress the extremely unfavorable attitude of the consuming public toward an strike this winter, and a weakening of the union as a result.

Governor Pinchot has lost no time in marshalling his forces for the suppression of the probable effect of the strike on both sides to further negotiation, he has overlooked an opportunity to bring public pressure to bear upon the contending forces.

Joseph J. Walsh, state secretary of mines, a former mine inspector and friend of every operator and mine leader in Pennsylvania, was on the field Saturday and Sunday keeping in close touch with Harrisburg.

Dr. Clyde King, secretary of the commonwealth of the state, and recognized as the "prime minister" of the Pinchot administration was in conference with the governor reporting on the probable effect of the strike upon the negotiations.

H. G. Tryon, wage expert of the United States coal commission and his assistant, Fisher, were additional conferees at the governor's residence Sunday night.

It was reported likewise that Faber J. J. Curran of Wilkesbarre, a figure in the Roosevelt strike settlement of 1902, and Bishop Hoban of Scranton—both recognized influences among the miners—might be called in, while from other sources came rumors that banking interests might be engaged in an effort to bring influence to bear upon the operators. No persuasive factor is being overlooked by Pinchot.

Other advisers in conference with Pinchot included W. D. Ainey, chairman of the Pennsylvania public service commission, who will present the state at the New York conference, federal fuel distributor Wadleigh and State Attorney General George W. Woodruff, who has been studying various state laws with possible effect on the situation.

Governor Pinchot still maintains silence as to his plans, reiterating his declaration that "things have not yet crystallized to a point where I care to discuss them." It is known, however, his program of action has been determined upon.

Regre was expressed at the governor's mansion that the illness of John L. Lewis, miner chief, would prevent his appearance at the Harrisburg conference, but it was said the substitution of Philip Murray, first vice president of the United Mine Workers of America was satisfactory.

By KENNETH W. CLARK

WASHINGTON, August 27.—"Let Pinchot have his chance." That was the attitude of Administration officials today as they sat quietly on the sidelines to watch the governor of Pennsylvania go to bat with the anthracite operators and miners at Harrisburg.

President Coolidge and those who have assisted him in dealing with the strike situation were watched in the Pinchot conference which would avert the cessation of hard coal mining scheduled for next Saturday.

Unless an appeal for further federal assistance comes from Governor Pinchot himself, it was stated authoritatively today that the government would take no hand in the controversy between the operators and miners, except to give its moral support to the Pennsylvania arbitrator and in carrying such state aid as the United States Coal Commission has assembled in its study of the anthracite industry.

The belief prevailed in some quarters today that a settlement would be reached through a compromise providing a ten percent wage increase for the miners, instead of the 20 percent which they demanded in the Atlantic City conference. Much of the data sent to Governor Pinchot by Chairman Hammond of the coal commission, bears upon the matter of wages.

While awaiting developments in Harrisburg, the government's fuel distribution agency completed arrangements for the conference of state governors opening tomorrow morning in New York. At this conference definite plans will be drawn up for the "hard coal boycott" which the government is to put into effect in the event of a strike in connection with its scheme of supplying the anthracite consuming states with soft coal and other hard coal substitutes.

William P. Bartlett was designated today to attend the New York conference as the representative of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, called at the White House today to promise the president his co-operation in carrying out the coal distribution plan.

AKRON OFFICERS BADLY INJURED

AKRON, Aug. 27.—Lieut. Oscar Wundler, chief of the vice squad and detective Sherman Gudee, Joe Habig and John Strusemeyer, are in Peoples hospital, severely injured as the result of a collision last night when they were racing to answer a burglar alarm. They were riding in a big touring car owned and driven by Attorney Ted Green who was at the police station when the alarm arrived. A coupe driven by Thomas J. Santy turned from the path of the speeding police car and then resumed its course, catching a rear wheel of the police machine, and overturned it twice. All five men in Green's machine were badly injured, being pinned beneath the wreckage when it stopped rolling.

Santy was arrested and released for further examination. Wundler has been head of the vice squad since last Thursday when the second shaking up of the Akron police force went into effect.

EYESIGHT AND ITS RELATION TO HEALTH AND EFFICIENCY

By B. B. CLARK

President Klatork Optical Company

Comparatively few have realized the tremendous importance of caring properly for the eyes, and to be of lasting benefit to the nation, the majority must be educated.

Until the child reaches the age of understanding and judgment, it is the duty of those in authority to know the condition of a child's eyes. The first attention should, of course, be given at birth by the physician and nurse and their advice followed. According to the Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, 10,000 persons in the United States today are totally blind because their eyes were neglected during the first few days of life.

An examination of the eyes of a child at an early age will determine whether they are in a normal condition. Every child is entitled to a fair start in life, and this cannot be had with defective vision.

A child has little means of comparing his vision with standard vision. He has no means whatever of knowing whether his eyes are right.

This is our function, work and service. This is the very reason for our profession. Bring your children to us for consultation and examination.

NEW FALL MILLINERY

Tall Crowned Hats Are Just One of the Features of New Fall Millinery Tendencies

Every woman chooses a new fall hat of course and most every one is choosing right now. Consequently a display of new Millinery Mode in all its interesting variations, is of utmost importance at the present moment. Hats boasting of the newest whims of tall crowns and ribbon effects, metallic fabrics and embroidered motifs, to say nothing of the new twists and curves of brim, are to be found here in models becoming to every type. There are all of the new Fall shades. Come in early.

Hats That Top the Wave of Tea Time Fashion

When you're invited to Mrs. Ogden's for tea, you want to be sure that your hat is correct. Or if you are matineeing with Mrs. Cluett, it will never do to wear a tailored street hat, of course. In fact, no matter what your afternoon occasions may be, the correct hat is a matter of importance, and you'll find it readily and satisfactorily taken care of here.
Hats of Velvet, Hatter's Plush, Duvetyn and in many becoming shapes flaunting lovely trimming touches, semi-formal and dress hats offer alluring choice. The prices range from—

8.75 to 20.00

Smart Hats for Street and Business

There are more people casting critical glances in your direction during your shopping and business hours than at any other time. And if your hat is wrong, it creates the wrong impression of your whole ensemble. New Fall Modes that will, lend just the right touch to your Fall outfit are here in an exceedingly wide variety of becoming styles. They're of Velvet, Duvetyn, Sueded fabrics and Hatter's Plush, Feathers, Ribbon and Embroidered motifs are out standing trimming touches. Prices range from—

4.95 to 12.00

EDITORIAL

At hand—an entirely new season—an entirely new mode. Fall Fashions have descended upon us with all the grace of 1890 period; the bustle silhouette, the subtle charm and practicability of the straight line evolution; together with a tinge of Oriental influence. Representations here interpret the smart notes of these new trends.

FROCKS FOR FALL

25.00 to 95.00

IN BOTH SILK AND WOOLEN FABRICS

Charming exclusive dresses for every occasion. Distinctive Fall creations are now being presented. The new Fall frocks favor the straight line silhouette that is emphasized and diversely executed by tiers, panels and drapes, lantern sleeves furnish an interesting variation in some frocks while embroidery furnish gay notes, on others, Satin Crepe frocks, flaunting tiered apron effects in the ways of 1880 are very smart. The tailored mode and its many ramifications is an important feature in fall dress fashion, here too, little recognition is given anything but the severely silhouette of twilled fabrics and rep there's an occasional use of lace and buttons.

Beauty!

HEALTH and beauty go hand in hand. Where the system is all run down—the face drawn and haggard—the body limp and lifeless—beauty is missing. Looks of pity bespeak those that might have been a source of admiration.

Preserve your health and beauty by taking care of herself. B. S. S.—the blood builder—rekindles spark of health and lights the way of beauty by building red blood cells. The nerve power of the system made life in these very days of stress. Build more red blood cells and your nerve power will increase. B. S. S. builds them. Richness flows through your system and lost charm will return.

The motor system will be re-energized and you will be ready to cope with all emergencies and blazes that may be ahead.

B. S. S. means beauty because it builds up the entire nervous system that are the basis of all pleasures—pleasures of the brain, tongue, cocaine, etc., etc., and good looks.

Kook-Rite Demonstration

INVITATION

Come in and see it cook. See it roast. See it bake. The Kook-Rite not only cooks the food, but it browns it as well.

INVITATION

You are invited to bring to our office any day this week, a pie, a cake, pans of biscuits, or a roast of meat where we will gladly roast or bake them for you in the Kook-Rite.

WHAT IS THE KOOK-RITE?

The Kook-Rite is an electrically heated stove based on the fireless cooker principle of cooking and is equipped with an automatic shut off device called the Timeter. This Timeter can be set at a given time for which it requires to cook any particular food and at the given time the electricity is automatically turned off—the food is then cooked by the stored up heat.

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD OWN A KOOK-RITE

It cooks by electricity—can be attached to any light socket. It is inexpensive to operate. You can roast your meat and cook your vegetables at the same time. It eliminates standing over a hot stove. More leisure hours for the woman who does her own cooking. Food tastes better cooked in the Kook-Rite. Juices of meats are saved cooked in the Kook-Rite. No shrinkage in meat when cooked in the Kook-Rite. The food flavor is saved—when cooked in the Kook-Rite.

Come in and See it Demonstrated.

LEAGUE STARS WIN OUT IN TENTH 4-2

CHAPMAN IS STAR WITH STICK, GETS 3 OF THE 5 HITS

By E. L. SCHAFER
The Elvira I. T. S. went down to defeat yesterday in one of the hardest fought ten inning games to be witnessed at Elvira this season. There were two good reasons why they lost yesterday's game to the Cleveland Stars. The first reason was "Big Bill" Fergus, star slapper for the Cleveland outfit. Fergus pitched wonderful ball all the way through despite the fact that he issued seven free passes to first and hit two men in the ribs. Fergus was in some tight pinches, for instance in the first with the bases choked, he only allowed one run to be pushed across. He was in tight quarters also in the sixth and ninth frames but he only smiled and bore down, sending the local hitsmiths back scoreless.

Another reason was Newman, the Stars' third sacker, who in the first three trips to the plate could do nothing with the slants. Talk was dishing out. But in the tenth, with men on first and third and two out he caught one of Talk's smokes and lined it to left center for two bases, sending in the two winning runs.

There were two good reasons why the I. T. S. secured their two runs. The first was Ambrose and the second was Chapman. In the first frame Ambrose worked Fergus for a walk and it was Chappie who scored him on a one-base smash to right. In the fifth they duplicated their stunt when Ambrose was frayed to first and scored on Chapman's long drive to left field that netted two bases.

The Clevelanders started on the right foot in the first frame when Campbell singled to right and went to second on Andrews' sacrifice. Birmingham, ex-big leaguer, was up next and got a life on E. Talk's error. "Big Bill" Bradley, another ex-big leaguer proved to be the Bradley of the past, for he slapped one of Talk's fast ones to right field for one base. The ball got away from Svoboda and Campbell scored. Birmingham labored to third and Bradley, by a superhuman effort reached second. It's a good thing Birmingham and Bradley were ex-big leaguers or they might have been able to run farther. Birmingham was caught going home, O. Talk to Kilm. Bradley taking third. Evans, another big leaguer, proved that he could still hit by pasting a single to right, scoring Bradley. Evans was caught going to second, Talk to Parker. Three hits, two runs, two errors.

In the last half of the first Wragg started for the locals by driving Birmingham back for his fly. Ambrose walked. E. Talk walked. Chapman slashed the ball to right field for one base, Ambrose scoring. Talk pulling up at third, and Chapman going to second on the throw home. The bases were loaded when Svoboda got a life on Newman's error. Parker missed a third strike. Forbush died out to Campbell. One hit, one run and one error.

Beginning the second frame Talk tightened up and turned the Clevelanders back time and again hitless and scoreless until the faithful tenth.

The locals tied the count in the fifth when Wragg missed a third strike for the first out, Ambrose walked, E. Talk fanned, Chapman drove to deep left for two bases, Ambrose scoring. Svoboda was called out in strikes. One hit, one run.

The Clevelanders won out in the tenth without the aid of the big leaguers, who retired in the fourth for Corlett, Murphy and Sammon. Andrews singled to center, Corlett flied to Wragg. Murphy fanned, Sammon singled to center, Andrews pulling up at third. Newman drove to deep left for two bases, Andrews and Sammon scoring. Taylor popped to Hastings, who relieved Parker at second in the eighth. Three hits, two runs.

Chapman was easily the star of the day, getting three healthy hits in five trips to the plate and driving in both the locals' runs.

This will be the last time for two weeks that Elvira fans will have a chance to see the I. T. S. in action. Next Sunday they journey to Marion, where they will play the fast Marion Stars three games, one game to be played Sunday and two the following day, Labor Day.

AMERICA TO WITNESS "RACE OF CENTURY"

On October 20 American turf followers will have an opportunity of witnessing the greatest match race in the history of the sport when Papyrus, winner of the English Derby, will meet the best American three-year-old at Belmont Park, N. Y. Zev, brown son of The Finn and Miss Kearney, stands out as the greatest three-year-old of 1933, but a special trial race will be held at Belmont in September to decide America's representative.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

The New York Yankees have offered many an interesting study in baseball during the last several years, but in some respects they have surpassed themselves this season. Leading the American league by a margin which virtually precludes the possibility of defeat, the Yankees have struck their mighty wallop when in foreign territory. On the road they are champions, hard hitting, relentless in attack and almost invincible in their defense. But at home they are just a baseball club and not very much of a club at that.

Of this thirty-five ball games lost this season no fewer than twenty-one of them were lost at home. Seven were lost in the last two trips, six in the last tour and one on the first. Seven more were dropped in between Boston, Philadelphia and Washington. The clubs which are easy when the Yankees are away from home suddenly become favored of Jove or some other deity in might to overthrow the champions.

June was a desperate month for the Yankees at home. Out of twenty games played at the Stadium they lost ten. They had just returned from the now famous tour of the west in which they lost one game, dropped two games to Boston, two to the White Sox, three to the Indians, one to the Browns and two to the Tigers. This sudden reversal of form startled the fans in fact, it may be said it staggered the fans. July was kind to the Yankees and they won seven out of nine games played at home. In April they took six and lost two at home; in May they won two and lost two.

They are now into August with its dog days and what not and it would seem that they are in for another hard month. Out of the first eight games played the Yankees were tossed five times and won three times. There is not very much raw beef and blood in five beatings in eight games when a team aspires to the championship of the world. The Yankees should copy from the old Browns and demand that a tour of the league be started and play the Giants or whichever team wins the National league pennant on the road. Then they might have a better chance of winning.

There are several good reasons why they can't win at home, but the chief reason is lack of aggressiveness. Some folks call it lack of pepper. Perhaps the long lead of the Yankees has gone to their heads. Maybe they think the fans will condone the defeats, suffered at home so long as they go out and defeat the enemy abroad. Victories wherever won are welcome, but the fan being an animal peculiar unto himself rather likes to see the team play its best at home. There is more of a thrill and excitement in watching one home run than in reading about a dozen.

There is little sense in trying to establish the fact that the Yankees don't fight when playing at the Stadium. They do, but only after a fashion. There is not that "never say die till you're dead" spirit that marks the teams abroad. In a word, the Yankees are not the same club that they are on the road.

This inability to win at home is quite distressing to Miller Huggins, authority on the Yankees, who is leaving from limb to limb in the high trees uttering shrill cries. A victory is a victory, but Huggins would rather have his brave lads and true win a few more at home, and if necessary, take the slap a few times on the road. But in any event, he wants to see the Yankees win at home.
